

Whenever You're Gone
By Andrew Sullivan - 2010 it's like of those times when things aren't what they seem like a cow in the park or a dog in a tree it's not that these things are entirely wrong it's that my life don't go right

whenever you're gone
whenever you're gone

like bad ideas that should never begin i sometimes write things that shoulda never been penned it's not that these things are entirely wrong it's just that my life just ain't right
whenever you're gone
whenever you're gone

I wake up and the woman I love is gone she's left and I don't like to be alone I wish it was worth it for her to stay but sometimes our work doesn't work that way you know know that I need you with me and I'll be here when you come home to see me but things just don't go right when i'm on my own baby hurry home

it's like one of those times when I live like a bug cause the hole that I'm in is the hole that I dug it's not that those times are entirely wrong it's that life just don't go right
whenever you're gone
whenever you're gone
